The College, in tune with its motto, conducted a heritage food festival, organized by the Department of Tamil on 26th January, 2019. The festival highlighted the goodness of heritage food and how it was helpful in maintaining people's health in the past, whereas food in the present day has become poisonous. A paradigm change in this notion has to come from the minds of the younger generation and so the students gathered together to prepare several varieties of traditional food. The event was originally conceived and executed on a small-scale, as an intra-departmental one, but once its relevance and need was perceived, it was upgraded and documented. Several students participated with much interest and enthusiasm and for the first time in the fifty years of this institution, students brought out a book of their own writings. The fruition of the event is the book titled "Thamizhar Unavugal" penned by the Under Graduate students of this college, compiled by the students E. Sundaravadani and V. Valarmathi, and edited by their guiding teacher Dr. A. Mani. This book has since been published with ISBN 978-93-5361-062-3. This book is not merely a recipe book of several dishes but it indicates the vintage of the dishes featured it also integrates the relevant Sangam era poems and folklore, which the students have learnt.
