Course Description:

The course aims to familiarize students with the regional writings in India in English translation. The course gives the students the glimpse of the vast diversity of modern Indian translation on Bhasha tradition. It encourages the students, through the carefully selected translated poems, stories, dramas and prose, a nuanced discussion of issues of history, memory, caste, gender and resistance. It exposes students to a variety of texts that exemplify translation, allowing them to have a ringside view of literature through selected works. The course also encourages students to analyse literary works using translation as a tool. By the end of the course, the students will be able to discern the polyphonic differences in literatures by carefully mapping the individual tradition of a language.

Course Prerequisite: NIL

Course Description:

The course will provide an introduction to cultural studies. It aims to foster dialogues on the operation of power & hegemony in popular cultures, institutionalisation, and visual practices that construe the dynamics of various social structures. The course foregrounds the necessity to narrativize the memories of the past and the present, thereby familiarising the students with myriad voices of high and low culture. By mapping the need to problematize the given conceptualizations of subjectivity and representations, this course would demonstrate the construction of hybridities, pluralities, notions of race, gender and nation that fashions discursivity. The prescribed syllabus underscores the need to read and re-read the production, generation and reception of everyday cultural practices of the producers as well as the consumers.

Course Description:

The course aims to introduce the students to the serious academic study on Children's Literature by opting for a comparative approach. This course explores the rich and diverse world of children's literature, examining classic and contemporary works aimed at young readers. It explores the relationship between creative writing and critical awareness of children's literature by facilitating certain major sub-genres on children's literature. The course will emphasize the literary, cultural, and educational value of these texts, as well as the ways in which they reflect and shape societal norms, values, and identities. Through analysis, discussion, and critiques, students will gain an understanding of narrative techniques, themes, character development, and illustrations, as well as the historical and social contexts of children's literature. The course enables the students to critically pose questions regarding its patterning in the contemporary scenario.
